FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

This past July, Turning Points for Children bid farewell to Gail Ober, one of its highly regarded, longtime leaders. Gail was the executive director of Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania, and when Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania merged with Philadelphia Society for Services to Children three years ago, she became the Chief Operating Officer for the combined organization, Turning Points for Children. Over the past three years, Gail worked diligently to accomplish four goals: 1) get Turning Points for Children accredited by the Council on Accreditation; 2) consolidate and renovate the office space; 3) complete a strategic plan for the new agency; and 4) design and implement a client services database.

With all of these key initiatives completed or well on their way, Gail was ready to explore the next phase of her career and find new and exciting challenges in social work. We are proud of her and of her contributions to this agency and the children and families of Philadelphia. We wish her all the best for the future.
